2019 NUSA CONFERENCE

Neighborhoods, USA (NUSA) is proud to host its 44th annual conference, May 15-18, 2019, in Palm Springs, California, where it will showcase the event's theme "OPENING DOORS TO THE FUTURE".

NUSA provides its members with the tools and training to improve and maintain great neighborhoods every year. These cutting-edge workshops provide an education for anyone who is committed to community improvement, whether you're a grass-roots activist or a professional.

NUSA's Program Development Committee is seeking proposals from the best and brightest to present workshops on a wide range of topics related to neighborhoods.

Preference is given to proposals that address the conference theme, "Opening Doors to the Future", in one of the following eight (8) workshop tracks:

NUSA 2019 TRACK DESCRIPTIONS

Sustainable - Healthy Neighborhoods: Discover how communities develop new and innovative green initiatives while sustaining and restoring the well-being of current residents. Learn about topics such as land use, green building techniques, community gardens, urban farming, alternative/accessible transportation (including safe walkable and bikeable routes). These workshops will demonstrate how communities are using natural resources in a sustainable manner to address water conservation, carbon foot printing, green building, solar/wind production and storm water management that promote healthy living.

Diversity, Youth and Aging: Programs in this category meet the specific needs of our youth, middle aged and seniors in communities with a focus on inclusive, multicultural, multiracial and intergenerational initiatives. Learn how neighborhoods are involving and bridging generations and closing diversity gaps between racial, ethnic, religious and LGBTQ groups through public policy and community collaboration.

Fundraising: Grants and Government Programs: Applying for program funds and negotiating the application process and/or government regulations can be a daunting challenge. These workshops will provide tools, tips and even some tricks from experienced individuals. In addition, you will hear how other communities have used grants and government programs as well as other public and private fundraising resources to achieve their specific goals.

Neighborhood Leadership: Attracting, engaging and maintaining a strong volunteer pool are essential to the health of a strong community. These workshops will focus on ways to develop and sustain a dedicated volunteer base that promotes as well as nurtures strong leadership. Workshops range from building capacity, skillsets and efficiency for community volunteers and identifying and supporting individuals who can/will become the next generation of leaders.

Prepared Communities: Fire, flood, hurricane and/or earthquake - What are the challenges faced by your community and what steps are residents taking to prepare for natural and manmade crises or disasters? These workshops will focus on how communities prepare for and train residents to meet the challenges of response to and recovery from a local/regional disaster.

Technology: Information is power. Learn how your community can harness the power of technology to communicate information effectively to network and stay connected through social media: Facebook; Nextdoor.com; Instagram; Twitter; etc. These workshops will focus on how to harness these and other resources to announce events, fundraise and achieve neighborhood goals.

Social Action Close to Home: Workshops in this category will describe creative neighborhood solutions to moral, ethical or political issues or problems. How has your community provided effective outreach to the homeless, indigenous peoples, refugees, newly released inmates, veterans, youth gangs (just to name a few)? What kinds of collaborations are being forged between your neighborhood, city, law enforcement, healthcare providers and religious leaders to benefit the underserved?
